Honorees Humbled, Moved by Accolades

Nick Larigakis, Dr. Van Coufoudakis, Costas Galanis.

Van Coufoudakis, Ph.D., received the AHI Hellenic Heritage National Public Service Award for his academic achievements, domestically and internationally, and for his fervent advocacy of the rule of law regard U.S. relations with Greece and Cyprus. He holds the academic rank of Professor Emeritus of Political Science in the Indiana University system. As a leading voice for Hellenism, Dr. Coufoudakis was an early member of the Modern Greek Studies Association, the premier interdisciplinary academic organization in the U.S. and Canada promoting Modern Greek Studies, serving two terms as the organization’s president. For his advocacy, the Republic of Cyprus named him Honorary Consul for the State of Indiana. A staunch defender of Hellenism and the rule of law, Professor Coufoudakis was an early member of AHI and remains on its Board of Directors.

Nick Larigakis, Paul Glastris, Costas Galanis.

In acceptance, Dr. Coufoudakis said, “...My work has been guided by a commitment to the rule of law and human rights, values I inherited from a diaspora family with roots in Asia Minor...The quest for freedom, the rule of law and human rights is unending. This is why we, as Americans, regardless of national origin, must always uphold the principles enshrined in our Bill of Rights and in our democratic constitutional traditions. This is what has made and will keep our country great...”

Paul Glastris, editor-in-chief, The Washington Monthly, and former special assistant and senior speechwriter for President Bill Clinton, received the AHI Hellenic Heritage National Public Service Award in recognition of his enduring commitment to a free press.

In acceptance, Glastris spoke about pride in one’s heritage and the importance of keeping those traditions and ideals alive.

“As Greek Americans, each of us has the opportunity to use some of the success we’ve achieved, the networks we’ve built, the wealth we’ve acquired, the talents we’ve honed, the leverage we possess, to advance the causes of Hellenism and of peace and security in the eastern Mediterranean. By joining and supporting AHI, we are seizing that opportunity.”

Dennis Mehiel received the AHI Hellenic Heritage Achievement Award in recognition of his business, philanthropic and civic achievements. Mehiel is the Principal Shareholder and Chairman of U. S. Corrugated, Inc., which was, until a recent divestiture, the nation’s largest independent manufacturer of corrugated packaging.

Nick Larigakis, Dennis Mehiel, Costas Galanis.

In acceptance, Mehiel stated, “I laud the American Hellenic Institute as an important and effective platform through which we continue to remind our community of the core values our Hellenic heritage embraces: vision, entrepreneurship, hard work, perseverance, and a culture of support whereby those who have been fortunate enough to enjoy success in this wonderful country, provide the same opportunity to those who follow.”

In acceptance of the AHI Hellenic Heritage Achievement Award for his lifelong commitment and leadership in medicine and activism in the Greek American community, George Korkos, M.D., FACS, harkened upon a passage from The Illiad and asked rhetorically, “What is it that makes us as Hellenes different?”

He offered, “Conclusion that I came up with is that for the Hellene, the Ellina, whether in ancient times or today, the norm for the goal in life is not just to take care of ourselves—yes, we want to provide for our families—but what drives us is to tackle those things that improve the lives and overcome the darkness for all people: war, injustice, ignorance, bigotry, and disease. These Hellenic values are what our civilization is all about and what spread throughout the world and is evident today.”

Nick Larigakis, Dr. George Korkos, Costas Galanis.

Dr. Korkos also offered some words of advice for younger generations with a twist of humor. “For you young people—I’m like the late George Burns—when you get to my age that’s anyone under 70—take the advice from an experience doctor and never ever take for granted the genes that carry that spirit within you—sustain the power, spontaneity and vibrancy of the legacy passed on to you and share it with all. Be inspired and inspire. “Ever to Excel” is not just a philosophy, but a way of life for a philosophy without action and deeds is useless.”

Dennis Mehiel, Gene Rossides, Amb. Leonidas Pantelides.

The honorees’ many accomplishments were celebrated throughout the evening, and highlighted in congratulatory letters submitted to AHI from His Eminence Archbishop Demetrios, Ambassador of Greece to the United States Haris Lalacos, and Ambassador of the Republic of Cyprus to the United States Leonidas Pantelides.

Finally, as part of the weekend’s festivities AHI hosted a breakfast briefing with Ambassador Lalacos and Ambassador Pantelides, on March 11; and major benefactors and supporters attended an AHI Greek Night hosted at Kellari Restaurant, March 10.

“As part of our ongoing outreach to Congress and to the administration, we provided the officials with an overview of AHI’s policy objectives and brought them up-to-speed on developments in the region,” AHI President Nick Larigakis said. “As a new Congress begins, it is important to raise awareness and continue dialogue with policymakers as well as advising them that AHI serves as a resource of information for them. We thank them for their time and interest in issues affecting the Greek American community.”

It also reaffirmed the cooperation among diaspora organizations in the U.S. for the trilateral relationship.”

AHI HOSTS BRIEFING WITH TOP GREEK, CYPRIOT DIPLOMATS IN U.S.

AHI hosted a breakfast briefing with Ambassador Haris Lalacos, ambassador of the Hellenic Republic to the U.S., and Ambassador Leonides Pantelides, ambassador of the Republic of Cyprus to the U.S., March 11, 2017, at the Capital Hilton. Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for European and Eurasian Affairs Jonathan Cohen also provided remarks. AHI President Nick Larigakis moderated.

In his opening remarks, President Larigakis addressed the importance of two major crises challenging Greece and Cyprus and added that Turkey presents an additional challenge to an already delicate situation.

In his remarks, Ambassador Lalacos expressed his gratitude for the continued cooperation between the Embassy of Greece and AHI. He explained despite the deep economic issues that Greece faces, it remains one of the few NATO members that contributes the required minimum 2% of GDP on defense. In terms of regional interests, Ambassador Lalacos identified the Balkans and the Black Sea as the two most important regional areas where Greece's insight can be helpful to all interlocutors. On the matter of Turkish relations, he said it was not possible to discuss the topic "without acknowledging that Cyprus is not resolved."

Ambassador Pantelides spoke briefly about three priorities of Cyprus in Washington. They are: the continuity of support on the resolution to the Cyprus problem, the improvement of bilateral relations, and the resolution of regional issues with the specific position and profile that Cyprus has in the region. The ambassador provided four categories in the negotiations that can be solved between Greek and Turkish Cypriots including: power sharing, territorial arrangements, the economy, and issues of property and missing persons. There were three other categories that he acknowledged could not be solved without the contribution of Turkey, which at the time, was a nation preoccupied with a constitutional referendum.

AHI SUBMITS TESTIMONY ON FY2018 FOREIGN AID TO HOUSE APPROPRIATIONS SUBCOMMITTEE

AHI submitted testimony to the House of Representatives Appropriations Subcommittee on State, Foreign Operations, and Related Programs on the Trump Administration's foreign aid proposal for FY2018 on March 21, 2017. In the best interests of the United States, AHI's testimony opposed: 1) any military assistance the administration will request for Turkey until Turkey withdraws all of its troops and illegal Turkish settlers in Cyprus; (2) the proposed elimination of the Overseas Private Investment Corporation (OPIC); (3) aid the administration will request for the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia (FYROM); and (4) any reduction that might be introduced in the aid levels for the UN Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus. Also in keeping with the best interests of the United States, AHI supported an increased investment for NATO ally Greece's International Military Education and Training (IMET) program funding level to a recommended appropriation of $420,000. In addition, AHI's testimony recommended that should a settlement to reunify Cyprus be reached via referendum, United States foreign assistance can help solidify a reunified Cyprus and its government during the post-referendum transition period.

The Washington Times Publishes AHI's Letter on Turkish FM's Op-ed

The Washington Times published AHI's letter to editor, "Turkey preventing peace in Cyprus," March 27, 2017. AHI President Nick Larigakis wrote the letter in response to a March 19, 2017 op-ed by Turkish Foreign Minister Mevlut Cavusoglu titled, "Turkey's vision for Cyprus." President Larigakis called the foreign minister's op-ed "fraught with misinformation that Turkey has disseminated since the start of the current settlement talks." Larigakis also corrected Foreign Minister Cavusoglu's account of Turkey's 1974 invasion of the Republic of Cyprus stating it was not an "intervention" as the foreign minister wrote, but instead an illegal invasion that occurred in two phases. Larigakis also included how Turkey contributes to instability in the region via its cozy relationships with terrorist groups and almost daily violations of Greece's sovereignty.

"I will do my best to enhance its goals, objectives, and programs and work to advance its reach in the community. Furthermore, we will work diligently to ensure more people get involved in the issues that are of utmost importance in the United States, Greece and Cyprus. I call upon all Greek and Cypriot Americans to join in helping Greece and Cyprus to overcome their challenges."

for commentary and scholarship on issues of vital importance to Greek Americans. In his introduction to the current issue, Editor Dan Georgakas, professor and director, Greek American Studies Project, Center for Byzantine and Modern Greek Studies, Queens College (CUNY), writes of the pressing foreign policy issues facing the United States, Greece, and Cyprus. The issue's first section is titled, "The Crisis in the Eastern Mediterranean." Six essays discuss the crisis from a variety of perspectives. The five essays that follow take on broader issues that concern Greek America. In the "Emerging Voices of Greek America" section, young scholars and activists discuss the refugee crisis in Greece, gay rights in Greece, and the Pontian and Armenian genocides. Our two book reviews address the economic crisis in Greece and the some of the roots of the Cyprus conflict.

AHIF Fellow Presents Paper on Cyprus Invasion at Conference on the Cold War

Gregory Graves, an American Hellenic Institute Foundation (AHIF) research fellow, joined approximately 20 young scholars in Santa Barbara, Calif., for the annual Graduate Student Conference on the Cold War, April 28, 2017, held jointly by The George Washington University, University of California at Santa Barbara, and the London School of Economics. Graves participated as a panelist on the conference's second panel, focusing on the global 1970s. He presented a paper titled, "Five Days in July: Tilting Toward Taksim."

Graves' presentation and paper drew upon a wealth of primary source documents that included a number of domestic and foreign archives as well as through the Freedom of Information Act. They were organized into a collection of 35 binders will be available for research at the American Hellenic Institute Foundation.

"This unique collection is intended to supplement and augment the pre-existing Foreign Relations of the United States volumes, compiled by the State Department's Office of the Historian, on the Cyprus Crisis," Graves said.

According to Graves, the assemblage of binders is comprised mostly of individual binders devoted to a single day or group of days from July 15 to August 31, 1974. Each "Daily Binder" contains: the schedules of the principal U.S. diplomats involved in managing the upheaval; the intelligence items these officials had access too; transcripts of their phone calls and meetings; and the relevant telegrams. In addition to these binders, the collection also features binders devoted solely to topics such as: Greek withdrawal and re-integration into NATO; the Turkish arms embargo; and intelligence studies from the 1960s and 1970s on U.S. and Soviet policy in the Eastern Mediterranean.

While the wide range of documents contained in the collection is designed to allow researchers to form their own opinions, Graves' research and analysis led him to argue that the crucial, and yet avoidable, diplomatic failures of the United States during the five days following the coup against Archbishop Makarios not only facilitated Turkey's subsequent invasions but also evidence the fact that key figures were accepting partition as the solution that would best suit American interests.

"We are really proud of Gregory's research and presentation at the Conference on the Cold War," AHI President Nick Larigakis said. "His research and paper are important additions to AHIF's volumes of work on the causes of the Cyprus invasion. We are pleased to be able to share the collection of source documents to interested visitors to Hellenic House."

Larigakis added, "They will be available in early fall after the dedication of the new AHIF John E. & Cleo Rumpakis Library."

AHI Commends Rep. Bilirakis for Demanding Justice for Protesters Attacked by Turkish Security Detail

U.S. Representative Gus M. Bilirakis.

U.S. Representative Gus M. Bilirakis (R-FL), co-chair, Congressional Caucus on Hellenic Issues, and co-chair, Congressional Hellenic Israeli Alliance, spearheaded a letter to the Trump administration demanding justice for the Americans attacked by Turkish President Tayyip Erdogan's security detail. The letter, co-authored by House Foreign Affairs Chairman

Emeritus Ileana Ros-Lehtinen (R-FL), calls for Turkish personnel based in the U.S. or Turkey who were involved in the attacks be expelled immediately and barred from entering the U.S. in the future. Forty U.S. representatives signed the letter.

"AHI thanks Congressman Bilirakis for taking the lead to demand justice in this brutal attack by President Erdogan's security detail upon Americans who were protesting peacefully," AHI President Nick Larigakis said. "AHI appreciates all the members who signed the letter in a strong show of bipartisan support for the protection of First Amendment rights and rejection of intolerable behavior condoned by the Turkish government."

American Jewish, Greek American Groups Welcome Third Trilateral Summit

The American Hellenic Educational Progressive Association (Order of AHEPA), American Hellenic Institute (AHI), B'nai B'rith International, and Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations issued the following joint statement:

"We welcome the third trilateral summit between Israel, Greece and Cyprus, held in Thessaloniki, Greece, June 15, 2017. The summit again demonstrates the ongoing commitment between the three countries, which share common democratic values, principles and interests, to strengthen their strategic partnership to provide stability to the eastern Mediterranean region. The announcement of a fourth summit to be held in Cyprus in late 2017 is a further indication of the partnership's development and significance.

"We are encouraged that the trilateral relationship is addressing critical sectors such as: energy cooperation, specifically in the field of natural gas; infrastructure and water; research and innovation, which is so vital to Greece; and foreign affairs, including enhanced relations between the EU and Israel. The importance of such a forum where discussions are held at the highest levels of government about the Middle East peace process, the Cyprus settlement talks, terrorism, and migratory flows—all critical to the region's security—cannot be overstated. Moreover, we continue to see growth in other critical sectors, such as tourism, that are a direct result of this strategic partnership.

"Furthermore, we applaud the unveiling of a plaque to mark the construction of a new Holocaust museum and the summit's condemnation of the denial of the Holocaust and all forms of anti-Semitism, racial discrimination, and xenophobia.

"Finally, we welcome the summit's recognition of the importance of cooperation between the diasporas of the three countries, especially in areas of culture, education, and youth. For our part, we take pride in providing broad support and encouragement for advancing the trilateral relationship's advancement, and we look forward to continuing to do so in the future."

In January 2016, our four organizations joined together for the second Leadership Mission to Israel, Cyprus and Greece; and are planning a third combined mission in 2018. The groundbreaking inaugural mission was held in January 2014 and led to greater understanding between our communities and the greater recognition of our common values, intents, and aspirations.

In Wake of Attack, AHI Requests Hearing to Reassess Relations with Turkey

The American Hellenic Institute (AHI) sent a letter to the heads of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs and House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on Europe, Eurasia, and Emerging Threats, requesting an extensive hearing on Turkey's history of violating U.S. laws and for the need to reassess relations between the United States and Turkey following the attack upon protesters by Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan's security detail.

In the June 5, 2017 letter, AHI President Nick Larigakis welcomes the Committee and Subcommittee's recent actions, which include passage of H.Res.354 by the former and a hearing on the attack by the latter. However, President Larigakis points out that Turkey has been a habitual violator of the rule of law, including United States law, for decades. In the letter, Larigakis cites as examples of Turkey violating U.S. law, its provocative behavior toward Greece and Cyprus, and its suppression of religious freedom for the Ecumenical Patriarchate.

"As a result, Turkey is a significant force of instability and its acts have dire implications to U.S. security interests," Larigakis wrote. "It is this behavior by a so-called ally that the Institute requests the House Committee on Foreign Affairs takes under further examination in a comprehensive hearing on Turkey that reassesses United States relations with Turkey."

LETTERS TO OFFICIALS

Letters to President Trump, Secretary Tillerson Emphasize Turkey as Force of Instability

To date, AHI sent three letters—two to President Donald J. Trump—and one to Secretary of State Rex Tillerson, that convey the Institute's concerns about rising tensions fostered by Turkey. In one letter, AHI calls for a reassessment of the United States' relationship with Turkey.

AHI President Nick Larigakis sent a letter dated February 6, 2017, to President Trump to raise concern about rising tensions in the Aegean Sea stoked by Turkey's provocations and to urge the administration to call on Turkey to cease and desist with its provocations because of the implications to the United States' national security interests. Larigakis provided an overview of Turkey's frequent and egregious violations of NATO ally Greece's sovereignty in the Aegean Sea. Among the many examples, Larigakis cited the 138 violations of Greek airspace in one day recorded by Greece's Ministry of Defense last week. As a result, Turkey creates instability in the eastern Mediterranean which is not in the best interest of the United States, he states.

In a March 28, 2017 letter to Secretary Tillerson, a few days ahead of the secretary's visit to Turkey, AHI President Larigakis requested that Turkey's provocations, which have created instability in the eastern Mediterranean, and which are not in the best interests of the United States, be raised during Secretary Tillerson's meetings with senior Turkish government officials. Larigakis cited rising tensions in the Aegean and Turkey's recent threat to Cyprus' right to explore for natural gas within its exclusive economic zone as how Turkey has been a force of instability.

AHI President Larigakis wrote to President Trump ahead of President Trump's meeting with Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan at the White House, May 16, 2017. In the May 1 letter, Larigakis cited rising tensions in the Aegean, Turkey's recent incursion into Cyprus' exclusive economic zone (EEZ), and President Erdogan's alarming rhetoric toward the European Union, as how Turkey has been a force of instability.

"Given the conduct and policies of the Erdogan regime, it is essential that the U.S. fundamentally re-assess our alliance and overall relationship with Turkey," Larigakis wrote. "We hope that you will make this point to President Erdogan."

Moreover, understanding that defeating ISIS would be a priority on the agenda, President Larigakis asserted the United States cannot trust Turkey in the fight. Larigakis cited the views of policy analysts such as Doug Bandow, senior fellow, Cato Institute, who wrote, "Erdogan long played footsie with the Islamic State; his government apparently helped arm, sell oil from, and open Turkish territory for use by ISIS. More recently he has targeted the Syrian Kurds, U.S. allies against ISIS." AHI cautioned that whatever future assistance Turkey should provide the United States on ISIS should not come at the expense of true and tried allies in the eastern Mediterranean who advance U.S. national interests in the region.

Congressman Bilirakis Submits AHI Letter into Congressional Record

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—Extensions of Remarks

E611

With today's ongoing fiscal challenges, increasingly severe storms, and escalating effects of climate change, it makes sense for our country to prepare for these disasters now in order to prevent or reduce damage. Smart planning to mitigate the adverse impact of disasters not only saves lives, but saves money—especially over the long run. In the aftermath of Hurricane Sandy when there were initial damage estimates in the billions of dollars, many Members from both sides of the aisle streamed to the floor to express sympathy to the victims, as well as to decry the extent of the damage and large costs. This program represents an opportunity to curb similar costs in the future while also saving lives and protecting property. It is time to reauthorize the Pre-Disaster Hazard Mitigation Program at a sufficient level to make an impact. I urge my colleagues to support this measure.

PEOPLE'S BUDGET

HON. BARBARA LEE

of CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, May 4, 2017

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, first, I would like to thank my colleagues, Congressman Keith Ellison and Congressman Raul Grijalva, for their tireless leadership of the Progressive Caucus. I would also like to thank to Congresswoman Pramila Jayapal and Congressman Jamie Raskin for hosting this Special Order Hour and for their work on this budget. It truly is a document we all can be proud of. Mr. Speaker, the federal budget is, at its heart, a moral document. It tells a story to the American people, and it tells the world who and what we care about.

Mr. Speaker, President Trump's outrageous budget that he released last month revealed what we've long suspected: President Trump's only concern is for himself and his rich friends. His budget is both hateful and counterproductive.

Faced with such boldfaced cruelty, it's more important than ever that we present our own vision for the budget.

And what a vision the People's Budget is. The People's Budget is the most progressive budget ever presented to Congress.

It invests in people and communities, instead of corporations, lobbyists, and bombs. It forces Wall Street executives to pay their fair share by closing the tax loopholes that corporations use to send jobs overseas and give CEO millions in untaxed bonuses. Instead, it invests in small business owners and Main Street to uplift those working in their communities.

Our budget invests in our communities by fixing infrastructure, including the leaded pipes in places like Flint, and bringing broadband to libraries and schools.

It invests over $1 trillion in the next generation—from universal pre-school to debt-free college—so that every child, no matter what family they're born into, can get a high quality education.

And it fully funds my Computer Science for All initiative, which would increase access to STEM programs for girls and students of color.

Mr. Speaker, as a single mother, I know from experience that no parent working full-time should have to raise their family in poverty.

The People's budget lays out plan to invest in and lift women, communities of color, and working families out of poverty.

Our budget takes serious steps to end the scourge of poverty in America, including raising the wage to $15 an hour, offering universal child care, and expanding paid sick leave to all families.

Finally, this budget lays out a plan to curb bloated Pentagon spending and reinvest in diplomacy and humanitarian aid.

We would take long overdue action to reign in waste, fraud, and abuse at the Pentagon, and give us an audit so we can see where our taxpayer dollars are going. And it would prohibit the expansion of US combat troops into President Trump's unauthorized and illegal war in Syria.

Mr. Speaker, this is a budget that we are proud to stand behind. This is a bold statement of our principles and our promise to fight for the American people. This is our Roadmap for Resistance.

IN RECOGNITION OF MRS. HILLARD'S 3RD GRADE CLASS

HON. DAVID A. TROTT

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, May 4, 2017

Mr. TROTT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the bright young artists in Mrs. Hillard's 3rd grade class at Randolph Elementary in Livonia, Michigan. I know that artists get their start long before high school and college, learning to expand their imagination and foster their creativity in classrooms just like Mrs. Hillard's.

In an effort to highlight young artists from across Michigan's 11th Congressional District, this year, I announced the 1st Annual "Color my Capitol" Program.

Brimming with talent, Mrs. Hillard's students were eager to showcase their amazing artistic skills and take part in this one-of-a-kind program.

Let me tell you, Mr. Speaker, Mrs. Hillard's 3rd graders did not disappoint. Their creations are unique, innovative, and imaginative. Their colorful artwork embodies our country's bright and promising future with these sharp young minds leading the way.

It is my utmost honor to have their artwork displayed in my Congressional district office in Troy, Michigan for everyone who visits to enjoy. Each and every time I walk into my office, I am reminded of their talent.

Congratulations to Mrs. Hillard and the young artists she has the pleasure of teaching.

AMERICAN HELLENIC INSTITUTE LETTER TO PRESIDENT TRUMP REGARDING TURKEY

HON. GUS M. BILIRAKIS

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, May 4, 2017

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to include in the RECORD a letter from the American Hellenic Institute regarding President Trump's upcoming meeting with Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan. As one of the co-chairs of the Congressional Hellenic Caucus, I have advocated for the rights of Greece and Cyprus against the intimidating actions of Turkey. Since Turkey's Presidential referendum vote, Erdogan's government continues to ignore and violate long-standing international law and treaties—a threat to regional security and an impediment to regional interests, stability, and prosperity.

As we have done times before, we must continue to condemn these acts of aggression and renew our call for President Erdogan's government to demonstrate to the international community that it is committed to all international laws and agreements. Additionally, the United States and our strategic regional allies must be better prepared to respond quickly and forcefully to transgression of international law from any nation including NATO ally Turkey through targeted sanctions and foreign aid restrictions.

PRESIDENT DONALD J. TRUMP, President of the United States, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: On behalf of the nationwide membership of the American Hellenic Institute (AHI), I write in advance of Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan's visit to Washington to raise the Institute's concern about how Turkey is a significant force of instability. In recent months, Turkey has elevated tensions in the Aegean Sea with NATO ally Greece, threatened Cyprus' sovereign rights to explore for natural gas within its exclusive economic zone (EEZ), and has infringed upon Cyprus' EEZ, and President Erdogan has directed alarming rhetoric toward the European Union and its citizens. In February, I wrote to urge the administration to act to uphold the rule of law and to call on Turkey, the provocateur of these tensions, to cease and desist with its actions that have dire implications to U.S. security interests. Now, AHI requests those issues, which demonstrate the instability for which Turkey is responsible, to be placed on your meeting agenda with President Erdogan on May 16.

ARDEAN SEA

Historically, Turkey has violated Greece's sovereignty in the Aegean Sea on an almost daily basis. In 1996, Turkey's claims to the Imia islets nearly led the two NATO allies to war over the islets. In recent years, the Institute notes Turkey's frequent and egregious violations of NATO ally Greece's sovereignty in the Aegean Sea.

In 2014, there were 3,045 total violations of Greece's territorial integrity, according to Air Traffic Regulations (ICAO) that resulted in eight encroachments with Hellenic Air Force interception flights, according to the Hellenic National Defense General Staff.

On March 1, 2015, Turkey unilaterally issued a notice to Airmen (NOTAM) a move to reserve extensive airspace over the Aegean Sea for military maneuvers that Greece protested. On March 3, 2015, Turkey canceled the NOTAM thanks to pressure from the U.S. and NATO.

On July 15, 2015, six Turkish fighters crossed into Greek airspace 26 times—in a single day.

On February 15, 2016, six Turkish fighter jets and a CV-225 maritime patrol aircraft violated Greek airspace 22 times—again, in a single day.

In total, 2,373 infringements and violations of Greece's airspace occurred in 2016. In fall 2016, Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan has elevated tensions unnecessarily by publicly calling into question the

In addition, Congressman Bilirakis stated the United States, and its regional allies, should be better prepared to respond with targeted sanctions and foreign aid restrictions for any nation that transgresses international law, including NATO ally Turkey.

AHI President Nick Larigakis stated, "We applaud Congressman Bilirakis for his staunch advocacy of Greece and Cyprus and for calling out Turkey as a threat to regional security and condemning Turkish aggression. We sincerely thank the congressman for entering our letter into the Congressional Record and his support."

AHI Takes Issue with United CEO's Criticism of New Emirates Route to Athens; United Responds

AHI wrote to United Airlines CEO Oscar Munoz to express "profound disappointment" with his comments that attacked the launch of Emirates Airline's year-round, non-stop daily service from Newark Liberty International Airport to Eleftherios Venizelos International Airport, Athens, Greece.

AHI President Nick Larigakis's March 20, 2017 letter presents the merits of the new Emirates route to the strengthening of U.S.—Greece relations, citing the potential for growth in tourism and commerce. "The new route fills a major void that has been missing for years, and provides the estimated 1.3 million Greek Americans, and their families, and all Americans, a more convenient option to visit Greece," Larigakis wrote.

Furthermore, Larigakis proposed to Munoz that instead of criticizing Emirates, United Airlines, as the second largest airline carrier, should reconsider AHI's request for United to establish its own year-round, non-stop daily service from a U.S. major hub with a significant Greek American market to Athens, Greece. Larigakis suggested Chicago.

AHI Receives United's Views on Greek Air Service Market

United Airlines responded to AHI, expressing how the company views the Greek tourism and air service market.

In an April 4 email to President Larigakis, and copied to United CEO Oscar Munoz, United's Vice President of International Network Patrick Quayle called United's 2016 seasonal New York/Newark-Athens service "a success" and stated United is committed to operate the service again in 2017, from May to October. Quayle added that United is aware of the growth of American tourism to Greece and cited it as a reason why United launched its New York/Newark-Athens service. However, he added United did not view other U.S. gateways, such as Chicago or Washington, DC., or a potential service to Tel Aviv via Athens, as potentially successful for nonstop service based upon the "market fundamentals." United does continually monitor the markets for opportunities, Quayle wrote.

"The U.S.—Greece market is highly seasonal with 60% of annual demand traveling during a four-month summer period," Quayle wrote. "Demand for Greece significantly drops in the winter and we do not believe we can serve the market economically on a year-round basis. During the non-summer season, we provide connections to Greece via other European cities with various airline partners."

Rep. Bilirakis' Congressional Record Entry of AHI's letter to President Trump.

U.S. Representative Gus M. Bilirakis (R-FL), co-chair, Congressional Caucus on Hellenic Issues, and co-chair, Congressional Hellenic Israeli Alliance, submitted into the Congressional Record, American Hellenic Institute's (AHI) May 1, 2017 letter to President Donald J. Trump ahead of President Trump's scheduled meeting with Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan at the White House, May 16, 2017. In the letter, Larigakis cited rising tensions in the Aegean, Turkey's recent incursion into Cyprus' exclusive economic zone (EEZ), and President Erdogan's alarming rhetoric toward the European Union, as how Turkey has been a force of instability.

In his May 4, 2017 Extension of Remarks, Congressman Bilirakis stated: "Mr. Speaker, I rise today to submit into the record a letter from the American Hellenic Institute regarding President Trump's upcoming meeting with Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan. As one of the co-chairs of the Congressional Hellenic Caucus, I have advocated for the rights of Greece and Cyprus against the intimidating actions of Turkey. Since Turkey's Presidential referendum vote, Erdogan's government continues to ignore and violate long-standing international law and treaties—a threat to regional security and an impediment to regional interests, stability, and prosperity."

AHI IN THE NEWS

Moreover, Quayle stated United's position on the open skies policy and "for healthy and fair competition globally" in reference to Emirates Airline's new year-round, non-stop daily service to Athens from Newark, N.J.

President Larigakis thanked United for its reply and added AHI will continue to revisit the idea with the airline.

AHI Legal Counsel Interviewed on Greece's Debt Crisis

Nicholas G. Karambelas, Esq.

Nicholas G. Karambelas, Esq., legal counsel to the American Hellenic Institute (AHI), and partner in Sfikas & Karambelas LLP, appeared on CGTN America's "Global Business America" program, June 15, 2017, to discuss the latest developments with Greece's debt crisis with CGTN's Rachelle Akuffo.

In the interview, Karambelas explained the strict measures that Greece has taken to secure the release of 8.5 billion euros from their creditors. He stressed the importance of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) staying in deal. Karambelas added that last week's agreement provided very little clarity on debt relief. The issue will be punted until December 2017 or January 2018 after the German elections, he told Akuffo. He observed that the measures should be balanced against how they increase commerce and that budget surpluses, econometric models and GDPs are not the same as commerce. AHI is reviewing U.S. government programs which may assist Greece to increase commerce, Karambelas also noted.

tant series of events."

In addition to serving as the chairman of the Economics and Budget Committee, Mr. Neofytou serves as: President of the governing Democratic Rally (DISY) party, leader of the Cypriot delegation to the Inter-Parliamentary Union (IPU), and a member of the Euro-Mediterranean Parliamentary Assembly (EMPA).

AHI CONDUCTS ANNUAL TRIP TO GREECE, CYPRUS

“We had a very productive series of high-visibility meetings in Greece and Cyprus,” President Nick Larigakis said. “We accomplished the objectives we set out to achieve, and the briefings we received on issues of importance to the Greek American community were insightful and informative. We thank all of the leaders who took the time to meet with us to discuss these very important issues.”

AHI Works to Address Many Issues Facing Cyprus

AHI Delegation with Ambassador Andreas Mavroyiannis, Greek Cypriot Negotiator for the Cyprus Problem.

The AHI delegation received multiple briefings from Cypriot and American officials on the status of settlement talks for Cyprus under UN auspices; Cyprus’ efforts to explore for hydrocarbon reserves in its exclusive economic zone (EEZ), and on Cypriot commerce and tourism sectors. In addition, there were discussions about raising awareness in the United States of the Missing Cypriots issue. All throughout the delegation’s meetings in Cyprus, AHI was commended for its past advocacy and current steadfast efforts to keep the Cyprus issue highly visible with key policymakers in the Obama administration and in the U.S. Congress.

AHI Delegation with Mr. Demetris Syllouris, Speaker of the Cypriot House of Representatives.

During its stay in Cyprus, May 8 and 9, the delegation met with: U.S. Ambassador to the Republic of Cyprus Kathleen Doherty, President of the House of Representatives Demetris Syllouris, Ambassador Andreas Mavroyiannis, the chief negotiator for the current settlement talks; Fotis Fotiou, commissioner to the Presidency for Humanitarian Affairs and Overseas Cypriots; His Beatitude Archbishop Chrysostomos II, Dr. Stelios Nicolaidis, director, Hydrocarbons Service, Ministry of Energy, Commerce, Industry, and Tourism; and Lt. General Ilias Leontaris, chief of the National Guard General Staff, who also hosted a dinner for the delegation at the Officers Club.

“Our meetings provided us with a candid assessment of the current state of the settlement talks and other developments in the eastern Mediterranean,” Larigakis said. “AHI believes Turkey must abandon its demand to retain its guarantor power, remove its 40,000 illegally-staged troops, and cease its provocations, if a just and viable solution for all Cypriots is to be reached.”

Greece: Presentations on Business in U.S., Lobbying Highlight Visit

President Larigakis also commended the evening’s honorees. In acceptance, the honorees conveyed their appreciation to AHI and to those who helped them to reach certain milestones in life. Each shared their career experiences and personal stories with the audience.

“Both honorees this evening are extraordinary persons—Katerina Panagopoulos and Dimitri Contominas are two very highly accom-

E. John and Cleo Rumpakis of Portland, Ore.

The donation, which was made in December 2016, is one of the largest gifts received by AHIF, and will go toward AHI’s Foundation Library in Hellenic House, according to AHI President Nick Larigakis. AHI’s Foundation Library will be rededicated and named in honor of E. John and Cleo Rumpakis, he added.

“We are deeply grateful to E. John and Cleo Rumpakis for their very generous gift to the American Hellenic Institute Foundation,” President Larigakis said. “Their gift will enhance the Foundation’s ability to be a resource for the community. Thanks to the immense generosity of the Rumpakises, we will now be able to properly catalog, restore and present the more than 1,000 volumes, archival materials and historical documents in our possession, thereby creating a remarkable library that will serve the community as one of the most unique collections on Greece, Cyprus and the southeast Mediterranean.”

“Over the years, AHI has proven it holds true to the rule of law, especially to the principle that no one, or nation, is above it,” E. John Rumpakis said. “AHI actively engages with Congress, the White House and State Department, keeping them informed and updated on policy developments. AHI has earned their respect and is a proven resource through the Institute’s programs.”

The Rumpakises added the AHI Foundation helps to educate the youth about the civic and political processes through internships and raises awareness of Hellenism through seminars and conferences throughout the world. They also cited their longstanding relationship with AHI as a viable and stable organization through its strong leadership as a reason for the gift to the AHI Foundation. ■
